THIS WEEK

THE CITRUS SINGERS INTERPRET CHRISTMAS

Perhaps the most anticipated meeting of each year is the visit by the world-famous Citrus Singers and their interpretation of the songs of Christmas. With a new director necessitated by Ben Bollinger's retirement, the Singers haven't skipped a beat. REMEMBER, you MUST tell DON if you plan to attend since seating is tight.

11:30 THIS THURSDAY WITH

REFRESHMENT

LAST WEEK

REVELATIONS GALORE

With Dr. Video detained over on the "west side", it befell to RYAN GARCIA, JIM HUNT and FRANK PARK to talk about how they got to where they are today. As usual, it was one of the better programs. Didja know that RYAN is an Ivy Leaguer (Dartmouth), JIM builds furniture in his "spare" time, and FRANK took pictures of places the sun really don't shine. These bits and many others make for a reaaaaly interesting thirty minutes.

THE DREADED VISITORS' SONG

There is a rumor afoot that some of the less musically inclined of our members are forgetting the DVS since we seem to be singing it so infrequently of late. Round up some guests soon and keep the DVS off the Endangered Species List. Do we have the guts to sing it next Thursday???

UNITY CENTER

Want to see the awesome sight of a true assembly line? Well, in the space of a couple of hours several dozens of young and old volunteers pack and sort well over a thousand boxes of food and gifts for distribution to needy families before Christmas. BE ONE OF THOSE VOLUNTEERS. Show up at 9:00 AM on December 20th at the arboretum and be put to work. It's worth the effort just to see the operation take place.

The Marble Madness Game?

Having morphed three weeks ago into a straight 50/50 drawing, the Great Marble Madness Game was still stuck in that mode. Anyway, DON YOST had the winning ticket. However, with licensing, cover and delivery fees tacked on, DON may've ended up owing the club money.

$ WHINE TIME $

PRESIDENT LES was forced to play the "guessing game" once again in the absence of finee's. RICK ZOOK was guessed to have been married to Maria for 25 years or so. DIANE BALSAMO tattled on CHRIS SHEVLIN for his new plutonium powered cellular fone. The revelation cost CHRIS $25 and DIANE $5. JIM HUNT was allowed to brag about his musically talented daughter. He plans to build her a guitar. He tendered $50 for the braggin' rights. The other municipal employee present at the meeting was chastised for apparently allowing the carpet at City Hall to be foreclosed on and repossessed> SCOTT OCHOA was thereupon assessed a fine in a confidential settlement. Then it was on with the program.

That's all. Have a good week.
