THIS WEEK

BACKSTAGE AT THE SUPEBOWL

This is a great chance to bring a prospective member to the meeting.

Having availed himself of the opportunity to watch the Super Bowl in a luxury box seat. Mike Giddings can tell us why the Giants won instead of trying to pick the winner. While a few of us know football as experts, all of us will enjoy the enthusiasm and good humor that Mike brings each year for us,

LAST WEEK

COSTA RICA BECONS

Monrovia firefighter Ben Begheri showed us Costa Rica an its attraction to retired Norte Americanos. The cost of living coupled with friendly people and beautiful scenery make it a tempting place to put down roots.

THE DREADED VISITORS' SONG

Candidly admitting that he hadn't read this newsletter and thought that Mike Giddings was last week, PETER HOFFMAN hosted his brother, Tom, a partner at Monrovia's oldest law firm, Patten, Faith & Sandford. Oops! I forgot we weren't allowed to mention our business name without paying a price. Hope LES doesn't get far in his reading. Anyway, Tom was forced to bear the full brunt of the DVS.

The Marble Madness Game?

To howls of protest, ticket seller KAREN STRALEY won the $130 (or so) by drawing the token from the baggie. She felt so rich that she took her boss out to a gourmet lunch the next day. While congrats go to the first winner of the year 2009, the Grand Jury is reviewing the matter.

$ WHINE TIME $

When BILL CALLAGY gets fined a buck per each year of his existence such a large sum of money is raised that no more need be sought. And that is how it came to pass last Thursday that a “buccaneer” was the only fine levied.
